

NEWS' EVENTS OF THE DAY SEEN THROUGH THE EYE OF THE CAMERA

Valeska Breslaw of California, who has been dancing but for six years, is now seeking the laurels of the incomparable Pavlova of the Ballet Russe. She is but 16 years old, and experts have carved a wonderful career for her. She started dancing to strengthen her ankles and did not discover her talent until several years afterward.

The painting "Eleanor, Jean and Anna," by George Bellows, an American artist, which won first prize at the international art exhibit at Pittsburg. When first shown two years ago it occasioned some comment owing to the known predilections of the artists for the teachings of Mr. Hambidge. Two hundred and ninety-seven canvases were on exhibition from all quarters of the globe.

You can't see an eagle on his sturdy little shoulders, but, nevertheless here is Col. Richard Stoll of Lexington, Ky. He is the youngest living colonel in his native Kentucky, which, of course, makes him the youngest colonel in the world. He received his commission from Gov. Edwin P. Morrow when he was 1 year old. The Colonel's father is just plain Richard C. Stoll, who was once a circuit judge of Fayette county, in the Blue Grass State.

Miss Ruth G. Swabb all set to act as sponsor for the first caisson of the huge Delaware River bridge which is to link Philadelphia and Camden, N. J. The caisson, which has just been launched from Philadelphia, will be part of one of the longest bridges in the world. Miss Swabb used real champagne for the ceremony, the bottle of which is held in her right hand, all dolled up with a fancy protection of gay silk network.

A new photograph, which has just arrived in the United States, showing Greek troops advancing against the Turks in Asia Minor. This is one of the best military action pictures yet received from abroad.

Charles A. Plumley, president of Norwich University, the military college of Vermont, says that wars are unpreventable and urges preparedness. It is his contention that nations will quarrel despite leagues and conferences because they are just as greedy as som humans. He calls attention to the conditions of Europe to show the thin crust which peace walks on.

Mme. Louise Berat of the Metropolitan Opera Company, who sailed for home on the Rochambeau, saying that she would not appear in any production in the language of her native country's world war foe.

Many noted personages attended the unveiling of the bust of Ulysses S. Grant, former President and famous military leader, which took place in the Hall of Fame of New York University commemorating the first centennial of his birth. Among the large assemblage of noted civic, State and national officials that attended the unveiling was Marshal Joffre of France, who is shown in the photograph. Dr. Robert Underwood Johnson, director of the Hall of Fame, is making the address.

Photo shows, left to right: Mrs. John McCormack, their daughter Gwen, John McCormack, and their son Cyril, on the Aquitania.

Reinforcing the levee near Scott, Miss., to prevent threatened flood. Working with a desperation born the Mississippi is rising steadily. Farther south, near New Orleans, property has already been done. the levee near Scott, Miss., where considerable damage to life and flooded and heavy losses reported.

Marie Wright Brenner of Kansas City, 22 years of age, said to have a remarkable voice, has been selected by Mme. Calve, the noted singer, to have the foot to fill the "Golden Slipper." She will shortly leave for France to study under Mme. Calve's tutelage, who will also pay all expenses in making a future opera songbird out of Marie Brenner.